Personal Statement

I am an ethnic minority of Caribbean origin, born in London and work as a direct supply teacher supporting schools with their specific staffing needs.

I started my career within the creative industries in the early nineties. I am a positive and tenacious individual who believes in working hard to achieve results. My approach to behavioural management in the classroom is rooted in respect and respect for other's learning.

Prior to teaching, I enjoyed a successful performance career in London and Germany; I was artistic director for the African Women's Forum, Portsmouth and founded and was artistic director for Wise Moves (Dance) Ltd – a major provider of arts workshops to schools. I have delivered dance workshops and performing arts projects to almost 50% of schools in Dorset and Hampshire as well as in other parts of the country and still work in this area when asked to.

I have conducted extensive research into key government documents and reports to identify education policy and develop new cultural products for schools, resulting in the strategic planning, development and delivery of various cultural projects to UK schools and galleries.

I have also worked as a consultant to individuals and cultural organisations, enabling them to access funding from Arts Council England for the development and delivery of arts projects. I am passionate about working as part of a team and contributing ideas to solve problems. I believe that all challenges are there to be solved and, as a result, approach problems with a positive attitude.
